Responsible Staff Member: Elisabeth Peregrine & Ross McBride

1. FIELD / SUBJECT

Function     Policy     Procedure / practice     Service     Strategy     Document (if joint, state with whom)

Describe the main aim, objectives and intended outcomes of the above:

A reduction in fetal movements during pregnancy has been associated with adverse fetal outcome including stillbirth and intrauterine growth restriction. It is essential that women that report reduced fetal movements are managed appropriately to reduce the likelihood of these outcomes.

To discuss normal fetal movements in pregnancy and maternal perception of these.

To discuss the risk factors for RFM in pregnancy.

To provide advice and a pathway of care to guide clinicians, based on the best evidence where available, regarding the management of women presenting with reduced fetal movements (RFM) during pregnancy.

An initial screening should be undertaken first. This helps to identify whether there is a possibility that people might have different experiences of the function/ policy / process/ strategy compared to others.

This initial EIA simply assesses whether different groups of people who use a service are affected by the intended function / policy/ practice / strategy more, less or in a different way than other groups of people. A differential impact occurs when a particular group has been affected differently by this in either a positive or negative/adverse way.

An assessment of whether there is a differential impact will be based on two factors – quantitative monitoring data and qualitative information, including the expert opinion from the EIA assessor who is normally the manager responsible for the delivery as well as someone with a different perspective. This would ideally be one or more service users or someone related to the service. There will be times when involving someone for their technical expertise or someone with specialist knowledge will be appropriate and EIA assessors should consider this. You must assess each of the 9 areas separately and consider how your document in section 1 may affect people's human rights.
